5. Freedom in the World (Freedom House)

- 'Freedom in the World' is a comprehensive annual report that measures political rights and civil liberties in countries around the world, assessing factors such as freedom of speech and the rule of law. The report is produced by Freedom House, a non-governmental organization based in the United States that promotes freedom and democracy worldwide.
- Covers 196 countries currently across the World and has been active since 1978, with its latest report being in 1996.

- Scoring Format: Prior to the 2020 edition, Freedom in the World assigned a country or territory two ratings—one for political rights and one for civil liberties—based on its total scores for the political rights and civil liberties questions. Each rating of 1 to 7, with 1 representing the greatest degree of freedom and 7 the smallest degree of freedom, corresponded to a specific range of total scores. The average of the ratings determined the status of Free, Partly Free, or Not Free.
- From the 2020 edition onwards, a country or territory is awarded 0 to 4 points for each of 10 political rights indicators and 15 civil liberties indicators, which take the form of questions; a score of 0 represents the smallest degree of freedom and 4 the greatest degree of freedom. The political rights section also contains an additional discretionary question for which a score of 1 to 4 may be subtracted, as applicable (the worse the situation, the more points may be subtracted). The highest overall score that can be awarded for political rights is 40 (or a score of 4 for each of the 10 questions). The highest overall score that can be awarded for civil liberties is 60 (or a score of 4 for each of the 15 questions).
